

Humanity Hour: Inspiring Curiosity and Civility in Today's Emerging Leaders

At Youth Frontiers, we work with students every day to inspire them to reconnect, re-see and reestablish respect for each other — despite their differences or disagreements. As with our student retreats, Humanity Hour is designed to be a catalyst for emerging leaders, inspiring them to live with greater curiosity and to practice openness to perspectives and experiences that may conflict with their own. This interactive event challenges participants to strengthen their muscles of reconnection and civility that our society desperately needs — and needs our future leaders to model.

In addition to this leadership-development session, guests will have the opportunity to connect with fellow emerging leaders from some of the Twin Cities' most respected businesses and organizations, Youth Frontiers' board and our Ethical Leadership Committee.

Quotes from 2019 Participants:

"The speakers were excellent, and I think participants left feeling like they gained something. Usually you leave events feeling like the organizer wants something from you. I left feeling like they want something for me."

"I really liked how engaging it was and how it was focused on understanding people as people, not as labels or stereotypes. I also liked how it focused on driving human connection."

"The thing that I liked about this event was how engaging it was and the conversation that came from it. I was exposed to different people's backgrounds within the business world of Minneapolis."
